People have forgotten where their connections are...

Looking back across time it's easy to see how this has been the case for many ages.

For every decision you make, every action taken, any act of neglect, kindness, love, compassion, or cruelty... each moment you are responsible for ripples spread out across the universe. The greater the emotional connection you have the more strength these ripples have.

This means nothing to the person who doesn't realize their connection within the great matrices of space and time.

So how did this happen? How could such a disconnected state occur? Can this be changed?

As you might imagine, those who had evolved looked in periodically. Seeing a pattern, and there is always a pattern, they waited until the timing was right to return to help. That time is now...

To know the truth of your life you must wake up to your divine presence. Your life, thoughts, emotions... your presence makes a difference. I'll show you something amazing with this class, something that changes your life. You are empowered...
